Papal Curiosities

What does INRI stands for? The letters I, N, R, and I, found on the top of the cross on which Christ died, are Latin abbreviation that refers to the following words: (I)esus (N)azarenius (R)ex (I)udaeorum - Jesus of Nazareth. King of the Jews.

For what purpose did the Vatican hire a private detective?

After a home movie had been secretly made of Pope Pius XII's dying moments and the Vatican discovered that the film was being auctioned off to the highest bidder, officials intervened quietly, hiring a front man to outbid everybody and to buy it outright. Then the Vatican made another unusual move, one guaranteed to make it the laughing stock should it get out - it hired a private detective to find out who had made that movie.

The private investigator, Tom Ponzi, solved the Vatican mystery, zering in, after much research, on the pope's private physician, Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi Lisi. Lisi was instantly barred from the Vatican for life and swiftly removed from the rolls of the Rome medical Association. Immediately thereafter, Lisi left Italy and set up his own rejuvenation clinic in a small town just over the Italian-French border.

How does the Vatican check ancient documents for forgeries?

While digging for a new underground garage under St. Peter's Basilica, workers in 1957 found the grave of an ancient Roman writer who had been buried with his cylindrical copper inkpot, his pens, waxed tablets. The inkpot still had some ink at the bottom (dried up), and when treated chemically, it was possible to write with the fluid. Using this ink as comparison with the ink used on ancient manuscripts in the Vatican library that were suspect, Vatican experts have been able to determine several forgeries or copies made years later.
